

Verbs in English grammar appear in different tenses. Tenses give us a more or less accurate insight in the time events or actions happen.

In common, actions can occur in the past, in the present, or in the future.

1. The past tense describes actions that happened in the past.
2. The present tense is used to describe actions that happen now or actions that take place continuously.
3. The future tense is used to describe actions that have not yet taken place. They will happen in the near or far future. (e.g., later, tomorrow, next week, next year, two years from now).

Future Tense:

There is not only one future tense in English.

The future tense is subdivided in four groups.

In basic grammar we only pay attention to the 2 main groups:

1. Will
2. Be going to.

A. Will

Subject	Will	Base Form of the Verb
He	will	go.

Use 'Will'

1. To inform somebody about a future action.

"I will go there now."

2. Respond to somebody else's complaint or request for help.

(Complaint: Somebody says that something is wrong.)

"I will correct our mistake immediately Sir."

"I will help you mow the grass."

3. Express a promise:

"I will call you when I arrive."

3. To express a prediction not based on evidence.

A prediction is a statement (something we say) about what we think will happen in the future.

A prediction with 'will' is not based on evidence. This means that we predict something but we have no proof that our prediction will come true.

"You will win!" There is no proof that you will win. It's not certain.

"I'm sure that he will be the next president." There is no proof. After the election we will know if he is the next president or not.

"Don't worry." "The weather will be great during our holiday." You cannot know this for sure. There is no evidence now that the weather will be great.

"The director is often ill." "He will resign." There is no proof he will resign. The director is the only person who knows if he will resign or not. Not the speaker.

4. Make a rapid decision:

"Wait," "I will get some coffee first."

"You don't need to do that grandmother." "I will do that for you."

Use 'Will'

1. In affirmative (positive) sentences

- | | |
|----------------------|-------------------------------|
| • I will come. | I'll come. (contracted/short) |
| • You will go. | You'll go. |
| • He will arrive. | He'll arrive. |
| • She will clean. | She'll clean. |
| • It will stop. | It'll stop. |
| • We will slow down. | We'll slow down. |
| • They will paint. | They'll paint. |

2. In negative sentences with to be:

- | | |
|---|---|
| • I will not be at the final contest. | I'll not (won't) be at the final contest. |
| • You will not go there. | You'll not (won't) go there. |
| • He will not attend the ceremony. | He'll not (won't) attend the ceremony. |
| • She will not be at the final contest. | She'll not (won't) be at the final contest. |
| • It will not be back in time. | It'll not (won't) be back in time. |
| • We will not buy anything at the market. | We'll not (won't) buy anything at the market. |
| • They will not solve the problem today. | They'll not (won't) solve the problem today. |

Use 'won't' for emphasizing something we say.

"You will come here now!" I won't!

1. With 'Be going to' we express that something will happen in the future. There is a clear plan.

This plan doesn't have to be for the near future.

"We are going to go to Mexico next week." (There is a clear plan)

2. We use 'be going to' when we want to make a prediction based on evidence we can see now.

These figures are really bad. We are going to take a loss.

We use the expression 'be going to':

1. In affirmative (positive) sentences:

- I am going to go to the Philippines next Friday.
- You are going to meet him within a few days.
- He is going to spend next Christmas with his grandmother.
- She is going to shop in Moscow during her stay in Russia.
- It is going to be transported to the Amsterdam Zoo within a few days.

With 'not be going to' we express that something will not happen in the future.

To make a sentence negative we write 'not' after am, is, or are.

2. In negative sentences

1. I am not going to go to the Philippines next Friday.
2. You are not going to stay there for a long time,
3. He is not going to visit his parents during the Eastern holidays.
